GOOD HEAVENS

Located in the heart of Melbourne CBD on the corner of Exhibition and Bourke Street, Good Heavens elegantly perches above the city, combining our city's love of cocktails and rooftop views.

Good Heavens has long been one of Melbourne's favourite haunts, having become the perfect spot for a libation year-round. Furthermore, given we hold the title of Melbourne's largest rooftop bar, we can cater to groups of all sizes, offering up cosy nooks for smaller groups and a sprawling terrace space for larger parties.

Let's get to the important stuff... the drinks. There are ten beer taps and an impressive list of beer by the bottle, with pilsners, sours and more from Australia but also New Zealand, the US and plenty from Europe.

But the focus here is cocktails - we make fabulous cocktails without the fuss of other traditional cocktail bars. Our list is full of fun favourites such as a Harvey Wallbanger, Mai Tai and our go-to Pina Colada.

But it's not just about the epic view of Melbourne and the delectable drinks, we also have a delightful offering of snacks and small bites. The focus of our menu is to offer up all the perfect accompaniments to your cocktail, while always catering to dietary requirements.

Please note, due to the age of the building, our venue is only accessible via stairs.
We apologise in advance for any inconvenience.

BIGGER & BETTER

We have recently expanded our footprint across the neighbouring building and now occupy a record-breaking space above the corner of Bourke and Exhibition Streets, becoming Melbourne's largest rooftop.

Here we've embraced a modernised 70s look, sporting a central al fresco fireplace and brutalist-inspired bar façade. The rooftop bar is almost entirely undercover and has retractable blinds to keep out the wind, making it an ideal layover for a refreshment, no matter the weather.

An expanded rooftop means expanded views, with guests able to enjoy sunsets down Bourke street and peoplewatch across Exhibition street.
